NEW WOODS COMING INTO USE

The Forest Service Is in Effect
Thus Increasing the Timber
Supply of the Country.

The scientific study of the merits of many species of trees against the use of which there has been a prejudice for one reason or the other, is one of the most important phases of the forest work of the government, and the investigations which have already been made have provided the lumber industry with much valuable information.

The latest discoveries of valuable qualities in a former neglected species resulted after an investigation of the tupelo gum which finds its home in the southern swamps. Experts say that the study has brought out as important data as the studies made on the loblolly pine, another species which was neglected for many years, but which is now put to valuable use for many purposes.

Tupelo, two years ago, at the time the study was begun, was little known and seldom used even in that section of the country where it is most plentiful. In the logging off of cypress in the Gulf states, where tupelo is found in large quantities, the trees were entirely disregarded. It was found that the prejudice then existing against the wood was caused by a lack of knowledge of its properties and lack of care in handling the material. The investigations have been carried on by the United States Service and have proved the value of the wood for a number of uses. The result of these studies, removed, very largely, the existing prejudices against this gum, and in a short time the demand for tupelo rapidly increased.

This wood is now widely used, not only in the state where it grows but also in different sections of the country, in the manufacture of wooden pumps, sounding boards for violins and organs, mantles and interior finishing, such as moulding, door and window frames and door jams. It is manufactured also into all kinds of lumber, including a good grade of edge grain flooring. Tupelo gum, in the form of flooring, was recently found competing successfully with Douglas fir in the Los Angeles market, even though bearing a freight rate of 85 cents per hundred weight from its source of production in Louisiana.

This is only one example of the studies carried on by the government for the purpose of creating markets and establishing uses for the kinds of wood whose properties are not understood. The re-son for making these studies is that by finding substitutes for woods now in use which have grown scarce in consequence of an excessive demand, the timber supply of the country is in effect increased, the most economical use of wood is promoted, and the evils of a general shortage in wood supply are to that degree lessened.

Cause of Stomach Troubles.

When a man has trouble with his stomach you may know that he is eating more than he should or of some article of food or drink not suited to his age or occupation, or that his bowels are habitually constipated. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to regulate the bowels and improve the digestion and see if the trouble does not disappear. Ask for a free sample. Sold by all druggists.

Modus Vivendi.

The handsome but impecunious young chap who had married the rich and elderly widow began to hint that it was time to give him the control of her funds and the management of her estate.

"Laurel," she said, "I shall allow you a sufficient income for the supply of your wants, but I expect to keep my business affairs in my own hands. This is not a consolidation. This is a limited partnership."

Tetter, Salt Rheum and Eczema.

These are diseases for which Chamberlain's Salve is especially valuable. It quickly relieves all the itching and smarting and soon effects a cure. Price, 25 cents. For sale by all druggists.

His Discovery.

"Have they ever discovered perpetual motion, pa?"
"I have, my boy. I had long known that your mother talked all day and the other night I kept awake long enough to satisfy myself that she kept at it all through her sleep."
